

Happy Birthday

If it ain't broke, don't fix it. Clarins' Tonic Body Treatment Oil and Blue Orchid Face Treatment Oil, the first products launched by the brand in 1954, have remained unchanged in formula ever since. Made of 100 per cent plant extracts. Now, to celebrate its second first anniversary, the brand in oursins kin. For its 6 oth anniversary, Clarins is releasing limited-edition versions (in gold-tone bottles, no less) of the oils.

FAST FORWARD

The skin's renewal cycle takes 28 days, so most skincare works with this in mind. But others, like Cosme Decorte's AQ Meliority W Concentration (8632) work with a seven-day cycle instead, in sync with the number of days it takes for surface skin to regenerate. The serum duo (one for day, another for night) has golden camomile and honeysuckle extracts which reportedly keep this renewal process running smoothly, strengthening skin's topmost layer so that it's better able to protect against external damage. Also, the serums are said to ensure that older cells are shed naturally and don't build uneven. All this means that surface skin becomes more even and smoother, and looks brighter. The best part of a seven-day product: You're supposed to see better skin in, yes, just seven days.
